Four Instruments, One Profile

Your profile is triangulated across four independent, validated instruments so no single test drives the conclusion. Each measures a different dimension of how you are built to work.

SIGNATURE STRENGTHS · TOP THEMES

Illustrative results shown to demonstrate report structure and depth.

Your Integrated Profile

The four instruments converge on a consistent signal: a mind that is energized by structured problem solving and pattern recognition, paired with a strong need for autonomy over how the work gets done. High analytical drive and strategic orientation are matched by a values profile that ranks intellectual challenge and self-direction well above status or routine. The risk in the current path is not ability. It is an environment that rewards process compliance over judgment.

THE DEFINITIVE RECOMMENDATION

Quantitative UX Research

The one path where analytical firepower, autonomy, and a need to understand people all compound instead of competing. A deliberate, evidence-backed direction, not a menu of options.

ALTERNATIVES CONSIDERED

Behavioral Data Science

Strong on analysis; lighter on the human-insight pull.

Product Strategy

Fits autonomy and pattern work; less direct research depth.

Your First 90 Days

A recommendation is only as good as the plan behind it. The blueprint sequences the move into concrete, dated actions.

Days 1 – 30

Validate

- Two informational interviews with practicing UX researchers
- Complete one foundational research-methods short course
- Audit current role for transferable research and analysis wins

Days 31 – 60

Build

- Ship one portfolio study end to end, from question to insight
- Map the three target employers and their hiring signals
- Draft a positioning narrative around the integrated profile

Days 61 – 90

Move

- Begin targeted outreach with the portfolio study as proof
- Schedule the 60-day accountability review against these goals
- Set the income bridge and timeline for the transition
